CALL FOR ABSTRACTS NAIRTL's 3rd Annual Conference

Research-Teaching Linkages: PRACTICE & POLICY

November 11–12 2009
Trinity College Dublin

This conference aims to uncover best practice in the development of research-teaching links and to identify potential policy supports to help shape these links. Abstract submissions are invited for papers, workshops and posters from all disciplines, centres and institutions and should be based on one of the following themes.

Research-enhanced teaching and learning: including case studies of disciplinary perspectives which may address the linkages of research, teaching and learning whether research-led, research-oriented, research-based or research-informed.

Scholarship of Teaching and Learning: including a systematic critique into student learning, looking at questions of student learning, making the results visible. Proposals may address the role of pedagogic research and how teaching informs research practice.

Graduate Education: including supervision and research mentoring; research orientation skills development; Master's programmes.

Please follow the abstract submission guidelines on www.nairtl.ie/conference. Abstracts should be submitted by the 31st of July 2009 and should not exceed 300 words.
